

Introductory Preview

Confidential and Proprietary!

www.HumanAdvocacy.org

Supporting Champions...PedestrianSafe...Beyond Racism

A Creative, 501C3, Self-Help Organization

Hi. I am Dagmire, but you can call me Dag. I am one of the cast of “Beyond Racism’s” new multi-media program designed to help reduce systemic racism across the board.

The removal of “fear” and the recognition of “commonalities” amongst all people, is paramount to building a “color-blind” population.

All races, religions, and people of color have experienced the saying, “stick to your own kind”. This is usually shared out of love and fear, but it contributes to a “safe” segregation.

To achieve an introduction to “Behavioralism” and the beginning of judging people, not by color, race, wealth, disability, religion, etc. , but by their behavior; the 501c3, non-profit, Human Advocacy, created :

“The Quicksand of Racism”.

Helping us accept people who are different from us,

An adult fairy tale titled
“The Quicksand of Racism”

uses engaging humour to show the history of, and solution to, systemic racism.

Copyright 2021, Human Advocacy, Inc
All Rights Reserved

It's the simple fear of people who are different.

Fear!

Racism wouldn't survive without

Fear!

Fear!

It's fear of people who are different.

Fear!

Many year ago, my wife and I were heading to Bethlehem from Jerusalem. We shared a taxi with another young man who was in his senior year at the university, studying engineering.. I asked him how he felt about the Israeli occupation of Bethlehem. He told me he hated all Jews. I asked , "Why?" And, he replied, "because my father and my grandfather hate the Jews."

How do we shed our fear of people who are different?

Human beings around the world all want their children to grow up to be healthy, happy and successful. From Afghanistan to Japan to Argentina, children will smile at kindness. From France to Kenya to China, children will sing. From Nepal to Ecuador to Canada, people enjoy good food, take pride in their creations, and like to dance.

We have created a program which helps people share their commonalities; to find mutual interests; to move beyond their historical fears. And, we reward them for celebrating their humanness.

Over time, we can all learn to judge others by their behavior, not their color, race, creed, religion, disability, social standing, financial position, etc. We can shed our fears...

“Our program begins in our middle schools with an animated film about two individuals who were raised to hate each other.

They begrudgingly spend several days together, on safari in India, and begin to see each other’s similarities. Through these commonalities they cautiously become friends. On safari, they stop and visit the Ashram of Dagmire, which follows the dictates of Behavioralism. Here, they learn how racism began and how they can limit their prejudices to mal-behaviors, and not judge others solely by color, race, nationality, or any other racial profile...

Imagine combining our simple feet-on-the-ground philosophy with the reinforcement of a community awareness program, financially designed to reward everyone involved. This is a healthy example of putting one’s money where one’s mouth is.

“Honorary Behaviorists.”

Celebrate

What we have in common

Respect

Our differences

Enjoy

What makes us human

www.HumanAdvocacy.org

Bob Goodman,

Co-Chair

707-544-2224

HumanAdvocacy@sonic.net

“The Quicksand of Racism”

Copyright 2022, Human Advocacy, Inc. All Rights Reserved